2026 theme

The 2026 edition of the Prize focuses on the theme “Reimagining creativity and critical thinking with artificial intelligence”. It will recognize projects that demonstrate how teachers and learners in diverse contexts are engaging with artificial intelligence (AI) systems in ways that challenge the flattening effects of AI and encourage critical thinking, imagination and creativity with evidence-based practices. The Prize seeks to surface and spotlight best practices that resist creativity offload and instead examine how AI can expand the horizons of human ingenuity across all education levels and in both formal and non-formal learning environments.

Who can apply?

Individuals, institutions, non-governmental organizations or other entities.

Eligibility criteria

- ✓ The project is relevant to the theme of the year
- ✓ The project should have been implemented for at least 1 year with evidence of concrete activities

- ✓ The project and its organization should not be affiliated with, or receive any funding from UNESCO

Focus and scope

Submissions should capture the strategies and techniques used to cultivate critical thinking, creative inquiry and imagination with AI. Each submission should provide insight into the following:

- ✓ Contexts of AI use and co-creation
 - The contexts in which teachers and learners use AI to harness critical thinking and creativity
- ✓ Teaching strategies that cultivate critical thinking and creativity
 - How teachers integrate AI tools to encourage learners to engage critically and creatively with AI
- ✓ Learning with AI
 - How students use AI to question, interrogate, explore, write, problem-solve or create
 - How students grapple with difficult questions and resist the temptation to offload their thinking
 - How AI affects motivation, participation, collaboration and critical thinking
- ✓ Assessment and evidence of critical thinking and creativity with AI
 - How critical thinking and creativity with AI are assessed
 - Qualitative or quantitative evidence, such as student work samples, reflections and peer feedback

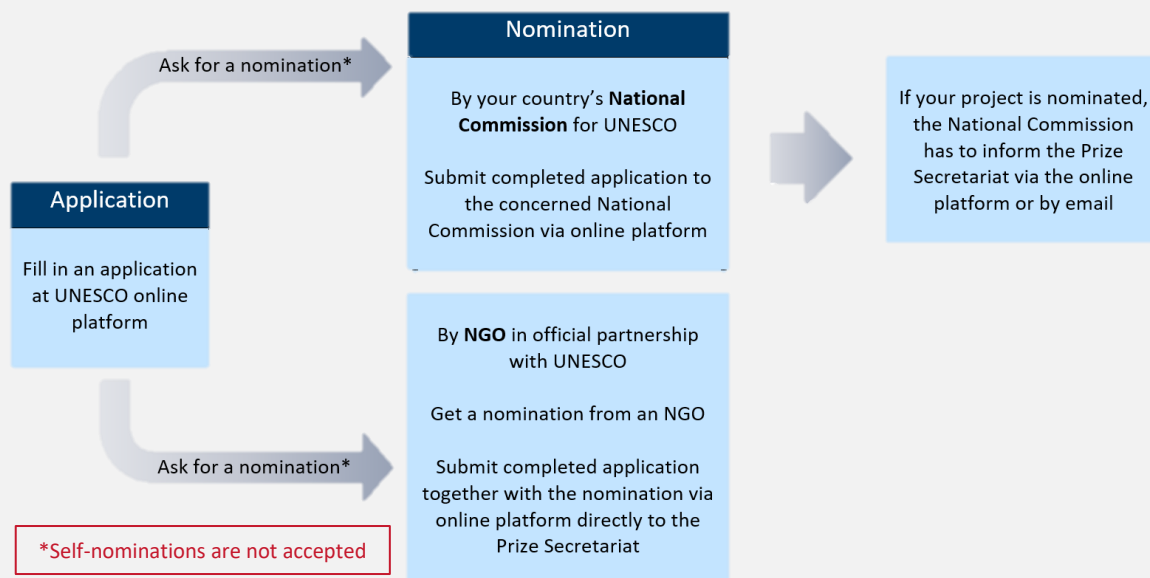

Selection criteria

- ✓ Learning contexts: The project should provide vivid descriptions of contexts and conditions under which AI is used to enable critical thinking and creativity.
- ✓ Pedagogical innovation: The project should demonstrate creative, contextually-relevant integration of AI in a manner that cultivates critical thinking and creativity.
- ✓ Evidence of learning: The project should provide clear qualitative or quantitative evidence of how students' critical thinking and creative capabilities are developed through the use of AI.
- ✓ Inclusion and equity: The project should reflect how AI has been used to reach learners who are excluded, marginalized or disengaged.
- ✓ Agency and voice: The project should highlight how learners exercise choice, curiosity and authorship in AI-supported learning.
- ✓ Replicability: The project should offer insight into how the initiative can be adapted by other teachers in diverse classroom contexts.

If digital tools are used for the delivery of the project activities, the Prize prioritizes projects that deploy tools offering unrestricted access to their core features without imposing any fees for target users.*

The Prize is not a grant scheme to support new projects or organizations. The Prize is aimed at recognizing already implemented projects and activities or individuals/institutions/organizations for the use of technologies in education, teaching, and learning.*
